The boys who take this Plan, course should be enrolled in the reserve force, so that the department will have some hold upon them."

Inadequacy of Bases. Regarding bases on the Pacific, Mr. Daniels said

Since a Pacific fleet has been established, consisting of half of our modern units, the inadequacy of the Pacific strikingly apparent. The Pacific tolen another one of my horses.

Mr. Reed-May I inquire if the Senator fleet which sailed from San Prancisco harbor on its famous trip around the "Adequate docking and repair facilities are absolutely necessary to permit a fleet to maintain itself in efficient condition. There are at the present time but three completed dry docks on the Pacific coast capable of taking the hattleships now building—one at Panama, one at Pearl Harbor and a commercial dock in San Francisco Bay.

"We have neglected to develop Pacific naval bases and navy yards. It is not the part of wisdom to delay providing afequate facilities on that coast. The Facific field is it now cases has a tonnage of over 500,000, and with the mighty capital ships under construction within a few years facilities much greater than I am now recommending will be required."
